TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—Georgia was one of the thirteen original states. According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, its population is 2,895,832, which represents an increase of 286,711, or 11 per cent, as compared with 1910. During the same period the population of the United States increased by 14.9 per cent. The following summary shows the population of Georgia from 1790, the first Federal census year, to 1920, inclusive, together with the number and per cent of increase for each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole:

Counties.—Georgia has 155 counties, 9 of which—Atkinson, Bacon, Barrow, Bleckley, Candler, Cook, Evans, Treutlen, and Wheeler—have been organized since 1910. Because of the territorial changes resulting from the organization of these new counties (see footnotes, Table 1) it has been necessary, in preparing the maps on page 3, showing rates of increase or decrease in total and rural population of counties, to make the following combinations: Atkinson, Clinch, and Coffee; Bacon, Appling, Pierce, and Ware; Barrow, Gwinnett, Jackson, and Walton; Bleckley and Pulaski; Candler, Evans, Treutlen, Wheeler, Bulloch, Emanuel, Montgomery, and Tattnall; and Cook, Berrien, and Lowndes.

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 58,725 square miles. The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1920 is 49.3 (see Table 1), as against 44.4 in 1910 and 37.7 in 1900.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which the counties are divided are collectively termed "minor civil divisions." The counties of Georgia are made up of 1,629 primary divisions, comprising 1,628 militia districts, 1 tract not located in any military district, and the city of Atlanta. (See Table 2.) In addition, there are 584 secondary divisions, comprising 123 cities (not including Atlanta), 445 towns, and 16 villages. (See Table 3.) Each of 8 cities, 22 towns, and 1 village comprises 2 or more militia districts or parts of districts, and each of 3 cities and 2 towns is coextensive with the militia district in which located.

Cities.—Georgia has 124 cities, of which Atlanta, with a population of 200,616, is the largest. (See Tables 3 and 4.)

The following summary shows, for each city having 20,000 or more inhabitants in 1920, the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the number and per cent of increase during the preceding decade:

Urban and rural population.—The Census Bureau defines urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside such incorporated places.

The following summary presents, for the last three censuses, figures showing the urban and rural population of the state distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification for each census is based upon the population of the various places as shown by the returns of that census. Consequently the territory comprised within any one class of cities or that designated as urban or as rural does not remain fixed, because any given place may, through the growth or the decline of its population, pass from one class to another at successive censuses. The proportion of the population of Georgia living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 15.6 per cent in 1900 to 20.6 per cent in 1910 and to 25.1 per cent in 1920.
